Wheatland Tube's, Wheatland PA facility products listed below have been IAPMO certified to NSF/ANSI Standard 61 Drinking Water System Components – Health Effects

This standard establishes minimum health effects requirements for the chemical contaminants and impurities that are indirectly imparted to drinking water from products, components, and materials used in drinking water systems.

The International Association of Plumbers and Mechanical Operators Research and Testing (IAPMO R&T), a fully accredited Certifier by ANSI, has listed the product types: Pipe and Well Casing under the IAPMO R&T Certification Program.

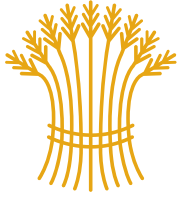

The International Association of Plumbers and Mechanical Operators only issues the Uniform Plumbing Code Shield to those systems, components, or additives that have met or exceeded industry standards for contaminant reduction, structural integrity, and material safety. Wheatland products that received the IAPMO R&T certification will be stenciled “NSF 61”.

NSF International is the author of NSF/ANSI-61 standard but, products certified to the standard do not have to be certified by NSF. All American National Standards Institute (ANSI) accredited certifiers are equivalent and equally accepted by regulators. Compliance with codes and regulations can be demonstrated by certification to the cited standard(s).
